

AT THE THEATERS

"Womanhood"

"Womanhood" is the supreme revelation of three noblest passions in a woman's life.

Rightly called "the love Epic of the Screen," it depicts the love of a maid for a man, the love of a mother for her child, and the love of a woman for her country.

So vivid is the story—so gripping is the intensity of the action—that it conveys to the mind and heart emotions so vital and thoughts so powerful that its presentation will leave its indelible impress on your memory.

"Womanhood" is the film of the hour—

At a time when the big world movements are converging to a greater democracy, this highly dramatic spectacle will be a moulder of sentiment of the country, an inspirer to the people, and perhaps the mightiest force to strike home the imperative needs of the moment.

"Business of Life"

The world had pointed out as unworthy the man she loved. He had been wealthy and handsome—a man of the world. He had been beloved of many women. And yet, he had never known real love until he found Jacqueline Nevins.

They met quite by chance—in the whirl of business life. But when they parted on that first afternoon they felt that they had known each other always.

Then followed the gay house parties at Silverwood, his imposing country estate—the hiding-place in the old suit of armor—the jealousy of the object of one of his former "affairs"—the doubts as to the permanence of his affection.

But her love was of the immortal kind that survives all worthy influences, and—

"The Business of Life" as presented on the screen holds all those wonderfully dramatic high lights that make it a best seller. It stands as one of the most entrancing works of the gifted Robert W. Chambers.

Pauline Frederick in "Resurrection"

The story: Katusha, a beautiful half Gypsy Russian girl, is betrayed by a prince. In accordance with the custom of the old regime of Russia she becomes a woman of the streets, and through an accident is finally sentenced to imprisonment in Siberia for a crime she did not commit. On the jury which convicts "Katusha" is the prince who is responsible for her degradation. He pleads with the Czar in her behalf, and obtains her pardon, and he presents this to her guard just in time to save her from the advances of a brutal officer. The prince offers to marry Katusha, but she has learned to love a simple peasant, and, preferring him to the prince, she gladly enters upon her banishment with the man she loves.

Feature Pauline Frederick as Katusha and John Sainpolis as Simonson. Jack Pickford in "Mile-A-Minute Kendall"

The story: Mile-A-Minute Kendall is the idle son of a wealthy man. His recklessness and dissipation cause him to be repudiated by his father. He later invents a motor engine, sells it at a good profit, and then finds happiness in the love of a pure-minded girl who befriended him in the days of adversity.

Feature: Jack Pickford as Mile-A-Minute Kendall and Louise Huff as Joan Evans.

Douglas Fairbanks in "Mr. Fix-It"

The story: It is Mr. Fix-It's theory that happiness is a habit, and that real happiness comes to those who make other people happy. In pursuance of this idea he enters the divided home of persons of great wealth, and proceeds to fix things physical and mental. There are two young women in the party who, although engaged to be married, are kept in hot water through fear of their future as the wives of their respective fiancés. Mr. Fix-It gets busy along original lines when he learns the stories of the young women, and gets himself involved in serious trouble through his unique methods. Mr. Fix-It, after many rebuffs, emerges triumphant however.

Feature: Douglas Fairbanks as Mr. Fix-It, Wanda Hawley as Mary McColloun.

This Happened Before America Got In

A wife whose husband is on active service recently presented him with a bouncing baby boy. She wrote to ask him when he should get leave, and also when the war would be over. His reply was follows:

"Dear Lucy—I don't know when I shall get leave or when the war will be over, but if the baby should be called up before I get leave, give him a parcel to bring out to me." Your loving husband, Bill.—Tit-Bits.
